Judge holds fast on 'danger to others' bonds

No change for Epperson and Robinsons

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

The Powell Circuit Courtroom became quite intense during motion hour last Wednesday. Powell Circuit Judge Frank Fletcher took on an issue that some attorneys seem to dislike. That is his rulings that in some cases the suspects are a "danger to others." Now he wants to either be able to do his job or have someone appeal his decisions to the state court of appeals.

Regardless of either outcome, Fletcher stands by his decisions.

At question were two cases in particular. One involves a man charged with DUI and murder after police say he was under the influence of medications when the accident occurred. The other case involves a husband and wife who are charged with trafficking in controlled substances.

Fletcher unloaded on David Ward, the attorney for DUI and murder suspect Brian Epperson. Ward had asked for a bond reduction hearing. Fletcher noted that the hearing could be held, as it was the law to do so, but he also felt that attorneys were questioning his rulings as if he had "made it up."

Epperson was arrested after he allegedly crossed the center line on Hardwick's Creek Road last November and struck a truck head-on. The driver of the truck, Donnie Tharpe, was pronounced dead at the scene and his passenger, Constance Puckett, was injured. Epperson did agree to take a blood test and told police he had taken a Xanax, which was prescribed for him. However blood test results found that Epperson allegedly also had methadone and oxycodone in his system. There was no evidence in court records that either of those medications had been prescribed for him.

"I don't care to give you the hearing, you're entitled to it," Fletcher said. "But the evidence is out there and what I saw I don't think I'll change my mind right now." Ward questioned the "danger to others" that Fletcher placed in his bond decision when Epperson was indicted. His bond is set at $325,000.

"I brought a paper with me from Jackson and it has Powell Circuit Judge Frank Fletcher expresses his opinion during a bond reduction hearing for Brian Epperson during last week's motion hour in Powell Circuit Court. Fletcher held fast to his belief that high bonds on cases he considers the suspect to be a "danger to others" is his decision to make. Fletcher advised Epperson's Attorney, David Ward that if he did not like the decision he could appeal. Epperson is facing DUI, murder and assault charges.

Local musician to live his dream, playing music in the Holy Land

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

For some people the chance to perform their skill or art in front of a small local crowd can be quite a joy. But for Scott Napier that joy will have an international flavor. Napier, of Clay City, will be performing with Mike Scott and The Nashville Band in Israel next month. They will take part in the annual Jacob's Ladder Festival on May 3-5.

It is a long journey for Napier in a long career for such a young performer. He is 34 years old.

Napier has traveled all over the country playing Bluegrass music. "I can play the guitar, but the mandolin is my main instrument," he said. Napier has played at the Grand Ole Opry, toured with groups like the Lonesome Ramblers for 10 years and performed with Grammy-awarding winning artist Marty Raybon.

Scott Napier

Napier has also took part in the July 4 Celebration at the Washington Monument, the radio program Prairie Home Companions and has been involved in several recording for various artists, including Larry Sparks and IBMA award winning female vocalist Dale Ann Bradley.

He has just released his first solo project "All Our Front." The guests also performing on the album include Bobby Osborne, Dale Ann Bradley, Don Rigsby, Marty Raybon, Michael Cleveland, Clay Hess and Kent Blanton.

"This festival is a real honor for me and the band," Napier said. "We will be representing American music at the festival and it will be playing Bluegrass and some Gospel Bluegrass music. The band is pretty much a put-together band with various performers."

Napier considers it not just an honor to go and represent America, but also his faith. Napier is a member of the praise team at Emmanuel Baptist Church in Stanton. "I love playing at the church and being a part of the praise team," he added. "When I'm not on the road, I'm playing here (at home)."

Napier still tours with his latest group, Lost &

Relay for Life: A personal battle leads to a relentless fight

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

Five years ago, Elaine Hurst remembers sitting down at her desk at work and making the call. Her doctor answered and immediately expressed the news wasn't good. The next few words to follow were, "Elaine, you have breast cancer."

"I thought, 'am I in a bad dream?'" said Hurst. "It was like, wham! The wind was knocked out of my sails."

Elaine's gynecologist found the suspicious area in her breast a few weeks before during her annual checkup. She also noticed her neck (thyroid) felt different.

"I was immediately scheduled for a mammogram and an ultrasound for my thyroid," she said. "When they did my mammogram, and saw the area, they went ahead and did an ultrasound.

Immediately, on the following Monday, I had a biopsy on my breast."

'Powell County Legends' return to help Relay for Life

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

How many times do you get to see music legends in Powell County? Well, make it two years in a row and there will be some on hand, sort of, for a good cause on May 12. The Courthouse Crusaders Relay for Life Team will be presenting the "Powell County Legends in Concert."

"We had so much fun last year we figured we'd do it again," Powell Circuit Clerk Darlene Drake said. "We have some talent right here in Powell County. Just about everybody in the band and performers are from here."

The "legends" that will be on hand, range from country stars to a rock icon. They are from the past and right up to today's biggest stars. "We have a good crew, a few changes from last year, but it's going to be fun and entertaining," Drake added.

The legends that are scheduled to perform are: Garth Brooks (Jimmy Crase), Elvis, (Endre Samu), Sara Evans (Morgan Hughes), Kenny Rogers (Lanny Rogers), Patsy Cline (Lori Barry), Brad Pasley (Avery Crabtree), Miranda Lambert (Brooke Foster), Johnny Cash

(Garland Lacy), Travis Tritt (Anthony Fannin) and Carrie Underwood (Jessica Hall).

"We are going to have a special M.C. (master of ceremonies) for the evening," Drake stated. "Jeff Foxworthy will be back for that duty." Foxworthy once again will be portrayed by Kevin Babcock.

The tickets for the concert are already on sale and can be purchased at the Powell Circuit Clerk's Office. The tickets are $10 each. "Just like last year

Mediation set for embattled Clay City fire chief; Charles hearing set for May 9

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

Two high profile cases were back on the docket for the Powell Circuit Court last week. And both will be waiting to see if and when a trial date will be set.

Jessica Charles, who is facing a murder charge, was back in court. Charles has been accused of killing her 22 month old daughter Danika, back in February of 2010. Police say that Charles struck the child causing her death. However Charles, through her attorneys, has contended all along that someone else caused the child's death.

Late last year police conducted tests on the hands of Charles's former boyfriend, Robert L. Richardson. Those results have not been released.

Jessica Charles

Charles' attorney, Tucker Richardson, informed the court that more evidence was being reviewed. Powell Circuit Judge Frank Fletcher set May 9 as the next pretrial hearing date in the case.

Clay City's embattled fire chief, Richard Rogers, is set to go on trial on April 30. Rogers has been accused of providing false receipts to obtain monies from the City of Clay City. He also allegedly sold a fire truck belonging to the county and kept the proceeds. The allegations surfaced in February of 2011.

But instead of a trial, both sides have agreed to mediation to try to settle the issues. Both sides agreed that former Judge William Mains, from the 21st Judicial Circuit, could be the mediator. The trial will be continued until the mediation hearings with Judge Mains.

tional $10 for floor seats," Drake said. "But you can go ahead and get the upgrade now, but you will be given an arm band and you have to have it that night to claim your floor seats. That night floor seats are first come-first serve."

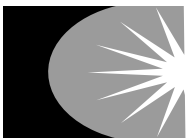

The event will help raise money for the Powell County Relay for Life. The money goes to help with research and other expenses in the fight against cancer.

"It (cancer) has affected so many people in the county and our group, like many of the others, directly," Drake stated. "We are just trying to help as much we can and have fun doing it. It should be a great night so I hope we get a huge crowd."

The concert is planned for May 12 at the Powell County High School. The show begins at 7 p.m.

COURT: 'Trying to do my job.'

"I've took it for five years, the calls and people wanting to question all of this. I just want to do my job and do what the statutes allow me to do. If you don't agree then file an appeal. I respect the court of appeals and their decisions. Setting bonds is my job and I don't mind doing it."

A bond hearing was held and Fletcher said he would take it under advisement. In past cases in which he takes them under advisements, bonds usually do not change.

The next case was just as heated. Attorney Tucker Richardson stood in to represent Ralph Robinson and his wife Carolyn. Both have been charged with trafficking in a controlled substance. Police conducted a raid at their home after and informant who was wired for audio and video, allegedly purchased medications from Carolyn. Police found over $50,000 in cash, nearly 600 pills and numerous guns in the home during the raid.

Richardson asked for a bond reduction and Fletcher told him he brought the newspaper "just for you." Richardson noted that Ralph Robinson was ill which led Fletcher to quickly respond. "I guess if you're sick you can break any law you want in the Commonwealth," he asked.

Richardson stated that there was no evidence that Robinson was guilty, saying that the money could have been there because "some people don't trust banks. Fletcher then responded with the items and money police found. "If my wife had almost $60,000 in cash, 600 pills and a bunch of guns in my home, I believe I would know it. I better know it. How would he not know it," Fletcher said.

"You think I make this stuff up," Fletcher remarked. "But here it is, in the paper. I know you (attorneys) think of this as a hunky-dory state court, maybe we ought to send all drug cases to federal court, you wouldn't talk to federal judges like this."

Fletcher denied the bond reduction and set a July 23 trial date for the Robinson's. Richardson stated that he already a notice of appeal prepared as he "anticipated being overruled." Fletcher also ruled that both of the Robinson's could be transported to doctors appointments as scheduled.

"I'm just trying to do my job. I was a defense attorney for 20 years, I understand what you all go through," Fletcher said as the quiet courtroom watched. "Respect is a two-way street. From the time they hit the doors at the jail I start getting calls and people want to talk to me about cases. Just let me do my job and please be patient with the court."

Clay City to help with July 4 celebration

By KAYLA MAYS
Times Reporter

The Clay City Council held their regular meeting last Monday night.

The meeting began with an update and presentation from the Clay City Fire Department pertaining to funds. The council reviewed the information presented and requested the financial report be broken down more before it was presented again at next month's meeting.

The council also discussed ideas and request brought forth from the Clay City Park and Recreation Board. Representatives from the board advised the council that the new playground equipment would be delivered this week. They also requested to buy a freezer to store ice cream for their annual Clay City Ice Cream Social. The council advised they would check prices before they agreed to purchase.

The council also discussed the AmVets 4th of July event. They all agreed they needed to support the function. The council agreed to fund the event up to $2,000, but wanted to wait and see what other type of funding the AmVets would receive. The council members stated they wanted to see the event as it was important for the community and they wanted it to be free.

The meeting then went into a closed session. No action was taken in he closed session, dealing with possible litigation.

Guest Column:

My wing-ding-a-do at the White House

By REV. JAMES L. SNYDER
Guest Columnist

It is not that ignorance is so bad; it is just so inconvenient. Case in point. A while back, I found in the mail coupons for two free nights in Daytona Beach. “Look, my dear,” I squealed, with delight to my wife, “We have two free nights in Daytona Beach.” Immediately we checked our calendars and selected a time when we could take advantage of our windfall, without running into all those spring-breakers at the beach.

Personally, I am not too crazy about Daytona Beach. I am crazy about free. Consulting the parsonage exchequer, we could afford free. Upon leaving the house, all I could do was hum a tune, “Two Whole Nights at the Beach ...” Before I finished, my wife suggested I quit humming.

Of course, with her suggestions always comes the phrase, “And if you don’t I’ll ...” Well, you know the rest. I took her suggestion, but I was humming on the inside.

Arriving at our motel in good time, we checked in and settled down for two days and two nights of absolute relaxation - whatever that is. The room was terrific and in the corner was an old friend, a La-z-boy recliner. With the recliner and a remote, I settled in for some serious goofing off for the next two days.

Admittedly, I am not gifted in many areas, if any. My wife, however, says I goof off better than anyone she knows. One takes pride in what one does best.

Next to our motel was a restaurant called The Wing House. On the outside it looked like a nice place and, unlike my wife, I am not choosy about where I eat. Any old greasy spoon suits me just fine, thank you.

I must say I was completely unprepared for what I was about to experience in the restaurant next to our motel.

On the second day of our mini-vacation, I decided to run next door for some carry out. My wife wanted some soup and I fancied something a little more substantial. When I am on an errand, especially one as important as my supper, I am usually focused on one thing and one thing only. I wanted to run into the restaurant, give my order, get out as quickly and simply as possible and get back to my La-z-boy and remote. It is my two days off; I will squander them if I want to.

I did not notice anything strange when I first walked in. I focused on the menu. Looking up from the menu what I saw shocked me to the core. I am known for dropping everything from dishes to keys. This time I dropped my lower jaw to the floor.

It took some time for me to gingerly pick up my lower jaw. I just noticed the young girl standing before me greeting me and inquiring about my order.

I heard nothing - but, unfortunately, I saw more than I expected. Let me try to describe this as delicately as I can.

The only thing I can rationally think of is, when this young girl dressed in the morning her costume fit quite well. I hardly think anyone would put on clothes that did not fit.

However, during the course of the day, being a young person, she must have experienced a rather dramatic spurt of growth, causing her clothes to be at least three sizes too small.

Estill County native J.D. Crowe is an editorial cartoonist with the Mobile, Alabama, Register.

Fortunately, or unfortunately as the case may be, the only thing keeping her breathing was the lack of material around her chest area. Otherwise, she could have suffocated.

Her clothes were so tight, not to mention skimpy (and I didn’t), that I wanted to take the shirt off my back and give it to her.

I mumbled something rather incoherently and said as loud as possible, “and make it to go, please.”

After giving my order, I did not know what to do with my eyes. You can look at the ceiling only so long before people begin inquiring into your family history. Other young girls, in the restaurant, I found in the same condition. There must be a “growth spurt” epidemic going around.

My order finally came and I quickly paid for it, made like an egg and scrambled for the sanctity of my motel room. I slammed the door behind and paused to collect whatever was lagging behind me, happy I made it to safety.

No sooner had my heart reclaimed its tranquil rhythm than I heard an anemic knock at the door. When I opened the door, much to my chagrin (and believe me I was not grinning), stood my semi-clad waitress with a restaurant package in her hand. I felt as though I had been run over by a Mac truck.

“I’m terribly sorry, sir,

but we mixed up your order. Here’s your order.”

We exchanged bags and one glance at my wife told me that, along with other things, I would be eating crow.

Later that evening, as I prepared for bed, I took comfort in the words of the Apostle Paul.

“According to my earnest expectation and my hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but that with all boldness, as always, so now also Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life, or by death.” (Philippians 1:20 KJV.)

Ignorance about some things is inconvenient, but ignorance about Christ is fatal.

Joint meeting of DAR held in Stanton

On April 15, Daughters of the American Revolution held a joint session of the Red River Valley Chapter of Powell County and Elisha Witt Chapter of Irvine at Hood’s Restaurant with guest speaker Sharon Withers, Vice-President General of the National Association of D.A.R.

Withers spoke of the role Dolly Madison played in the formation of our country and her life, struggles, and successes.

Her warm personality and outgoing nature led her to be White House hostess not only for her husband, President John Madison, but for President Thomas Jefferson also.

NAPIER: Taking part in a 'once-in-a-lifetime chance'

Found. "When I was asked about playing in the festival, I immediately jumped on board," Napier said with a smile as he tried to contain his excitement. "We are going to be the only American band there. It's just exciting."

According to the festival's website "the Jacob's Ladder Folk Festival is a unique musical and social event for lovers of all aspects of folk music from Bluegrass to World music, from Irish jigs to Country Rock, from Blues to Renaissance."

The annual international festival begins on Thursday evening, May 3 and continues until late afternoon on Saturday, May 5. The festival includes activities for all the family on six different stages or activity centers. The website indicates that "Thursday is a more intimate evening so people can chill out after a week's work, putting up tents etc. On Friday from morning until the early hours and on Saturday from morning until 5 p.m. one can enjoy a marathon of concerts and activities on a variety of stages with jam sessions of all types in every possible corner. Festival tickets include entrance to all concerts, sessions, dance and music workshops, story tent, yoga, tai chi, swimming, crafts fair, parking and free camping."

The festival's information states that it takes place on the grounds of Nof Ginosar Hotel, on Lake Kinneret, just south of Kibbutz Ginosar. It is located on Route 90, approximately 10 kilometers (just over six miles) north of Tiberias. That is near the Golan Heights.

Napier hopes to use the trip to not only perform, but to see the sites. "We get there on May 2 and will be staying until May 8. So I want to tour the Holy Land and see Jerusalem," he said as his smile seemed to broaden. "I can't wait to see it and to be there. It will be a great experience."

Napier plans to take plenty of photographs and possibly share them with Bluegrass music publications and the Times when he returns.

"I'm just excited about going and being the only American band that will be there," Napier said. "It is a great opportunity for someone local to be able to do this. I love to play and I really want to see the Holy Land. It is a once-in-a-lifetime chance and I am glad to be part of it."

The time we are given . . .

By SARAH BLOOM
Times Lifestyle
Columnist

I have often been told that growing old is no fun, but it is better than the alternative. I must say I completely agree. We should be thankful for each day we are given and I am, but there is one element of growing older that I wish we could all forfeit.

I am not referring to wrinkles or going gray, nothing so superficial or easily remedied. The loss of loved ones is the undeniably worst part of clicking past another year on the calendar.

When I was a young girl I never had to think much about death. Of course, there were family members that passed on when I was a child, but youth is a blessed protector. Most children know that it is a finality, but due to age they are much more capable of allowing themselves to be distracted from it. Adults are not afforded that luxury.

We can probably all remember the first death that occurred in our families that made us actually stop and realize life is far too short.

I was just a small girl, probably in Kindergarten, when my first grandparent died. My Papaw Manley lost his fight with cancer at the young age of 60. I do not consider that to be an "old" age. He was a pipe smoking man with a crooked finger and a hidden train room and though I lost him as a child I still miss him.

The older I get the more I see the people of my life slowly disappearing. They do not have to be family for their deaths to make an impact. I have watched members of my church, who have been a constant vision for me on Sunday mornings since I was a child, pass away. Their absence leaving a visible void on the pew.

Looking back at my old high school yearbooks I can scan the faces looking back at me in black and white and sadly pick out those who have left this world far too young.

There is comfort in familiarity, a blessed peace in a steady constant. Growing up you come to expect to see certain faces when you go to the family dinners or gatherings and when those faces begin to disappear you realize how fragile life truly is. In some cases you may not see a person very often, but you know that they are still well, still a part of your life.

Our loved ones, the faces of our lives, piece together much like a puzzle or a beautiful quilt. Everyone has their spot and when that spot becomes empty, no one can take their place, it was made uniquely for them. Granted some leave a greater void than others, but that void is still there.

My grandfather, my mother's biological father, is dying. Due to life and circumstance I have never really known him other than a few visits as a child and of course through reports and stories seeping through the grapevine.

He lives in Louisiana and has my entire life. From what little I know of him he is a veteran of the Air Force where he had served as a pilot for many years. I have always known he was there and I guess to a point that knowledge brought a small bit of comfort, most notably since my other two grandfathers have already gone to be with the Lord.

Though he has not been a predominant piece of my life I know that his absence will definitely be felt. That piece of my life puzzle will be vacant and though we were not afforded the endearing memories of a normal grandfather / granddaughter relationship I know that no one else will be able to fill that spot.

We should all make a determined effort to enjoy the time we are given and use it wisely. Only God knows when our name will be called and so we should treat each day as a new opportunity to show those who are important to us how much they truly mean. Our presence impacts those around us more than we ever realize and once we are gone that is all our loved ones have... make it count.

"To everything there is a season, a time for every purpose under heaven: a time to be born, and a time to die..." Ecclesiastes 3:1-2

Plan your vacation wisely and save some money

PAM DOOLEY
County
Home Ec.
Agent

Can you believe it? The end of the school year is almost here. Many are looking forward to and are already planning family vacations. However, increasing gas prices, airfare, lodging, and entertainment may make this year's summer getaway more difficult causing some to think about cancelling this year's plans.

Instead of cancelling, there are several ways to trim your travel budget. Reduce the number of days of your trip, maybe instead of planning for a week-long trip, take several shorter long weekend trips.

If you have not yet selected your destination, consider off-peak locations. If your plans are flexible, look for last minute deals or specials. Airlines and hotels offer discounts to fill vacant seats and rooms. However, if you are searching the Internet for deals, be certain you are dealing with a reputable travel company.

Finally, instead of planning a big family vacation, consider becoming a tourist at home. Contact the Powell County Tourism Office for the variety of events and activities happening locally, in nearby towns or within the state.

Regardless of your vacation destination or activities, don't forget the importance of staying within your budget. Set a daily spending limit for meals, entertainment, and souvenirs. Make certain that everyone in the family is aware of the limit and allow everyone to help make the decisions of what you will do.

Whether you decide to go on a day trip, a weekend get-a-way or a week-long vacation, to help save money at home before you go remember to unplug any unnecessary appliances, such as TV's, DVD players, coffee pots, and microwaves. These items can still use energy in their off mode. Also adjust thermostat and water heater settings to conserve energy.

Regardless of your vacation plans, don't forget the importance of staying within your budget.

HURST: Fighting cancer has been a journey with lessons learned waiting to receive her results she was in denial.

"Cancer was the furthest thing from my mind," she said. "I thought, 'I'm a healthy lady. There is nothing wrong with me.'"

It wasn't until hearing the words, "you have cancer," undergoing a lumpectomy and fighting through radiation that things became real.

"It was a trying time," said Hurst. "My family pulled me through."

Months after her surgery and treatment she returned to her doctor for a follow up appointment. Her doctor then asked that she see an endocrinologist about her thyroid. For the second time, Elaine admits she again was in denial. She was to return to the endocrinologist on a Friday to receive her results from the following visit, but her daughter went into labor with her grandchild on that day.

"I thought to myself, 'I'm not going to that appointment; I'm going with my daughter and this baby,'" she said. "It was after the baby was born that I called the doctor. They told me again that they didn't have good news."

Elaine was about to fight yet another battle with cancer. To treat her thyroid cancer, doctors completely removed the gland.

"There is nothing fun about thyroid cancer," said Hurst. "This was an experience and a half. It changes your whole body!"

Elaine admits fighting cancer has been a journey, but found she learned a few key lessons along the way.

"You enjoy family more. My husband, Donald, my daughter, Rebecca, and her husband, Lynn, my son Alan, and his wife, Katie, went through so much while I was battling this disease," she said. "They helped me through it. Oh, and I could never forget the loves of my life, my two grandchildren, Tate and Madelynn."

"I also try to experience everything in life and take time. And, I try to be nice to people. Your attitude about life just changes."

She also learned that more lives can be saved from cancer by participating in her local Relay For Life of Powell County. She's served as a team captain for six years now.

"Our team, Red River Health Care, is going to be the Flintstones this year," she said. "We've done some really cool fundraisers like a couponing night, a Valentine's Day cake pop fundraiser and a cookbook."

Relay For Life is the American Cancer

Society's signature fundraiser. Because cancer never sleeps, Relay For Life is an overnight event where teams of people camp out at a local high school, park, or fairground and take turns walking or running around a path. The event raises much needed awareness and funds to fight cancer.

Money raised through the event helps support the American Cancer Society's cutting-edge research programs, as well as programs and services such as wigs and mastectomy supplies, college scholarships, Road to Recovery, Reach to Recovery, Look Good... Feel Better and free lodging for patients in active cancer treatment at one of our five Hope Lodges in the Mid-South, including the Hope Lodge in Lexington, KY, and so much more.

"I participate because I know that I'm helping to save lives and we need a cure, desperately," said Hurst. "If the Relay here just helps one somebody stay at a Hope Lodge, then it's worth it. I know you (American Cancer Society) offer lots of good things, but if we could help a person with one little thing like that, it's worth it."

The Relay For Life of Powell County will take place May 11-12 at Stanton City Park. For more information on how to join the Relay For Life of Powell County, call the American Cancer Society at 1-800-227-2345 or visit relayforlife.org/powell.

ENCOURAGING WORD: A GUIDING PRINCIPLE

Howard Coop
Guest Columnist

The day, a beautiful one, began as most days usually do. A rather long to-do list had been prepared, and plans, in some detail, had been made for the activities of the day. Realizing the number of things on that long list and what had to be done before the day ended, I was somewhat eager to begin the activities to work and everything seemed to go exceedingly well. I was pleased and pleasantly surprised. One task after another was completed on time and as planned. The day, I thought, was moving forward perfectly and in the right direction, and I was certain that, at the end of the day, real accomplishment would be a reality.

After a while, I paused to rest and, for a moment, to reflect on how well things were going.

During that moment of rest and pleasant reflection, I was faced with another stark reality. Suddenly and without warning, the day's activities were interrupted. An emergency developed, and immediately, everything changed. I was faced with a demanding responsibility that took precedent over everything I was doing and had planned to do that day.

But that's life, isn't it? Everything seems to be moving ahead smoothly and without difficulty. Then, when we least expect it, something happens that interrupts all plans, and the normal flow of life is changed. Sometimes these interruptions that occur in the normal schedule are minor, and they cause little trouble. After a blip in the schedule, things fall into place. Everything returns to normal, and life goes on. But there are other times when those things that interrupt the normally scheduled activities of life are vastly different. They are more than blips in the daily schedule. They are truly cataclysmic, and they change the course of life.

Something reliable---a guiding principle---is necessary to help one deal with these recurring problems and give stability to life.

With the plans that I had made before me, I began

Letcher Central, the defending 14th Region champions and pre-season favorite to repeat, and Powell would lock up for a classic high school baseball game.

Powell led off the game with a walk to Matt Pelfrey. Cody Morton laid down a beautiful sacrifice bunt to get Pelfrey to second base. Elliot Hale singled sharply to center scoring the first run off the game. Joey Johnson, the Pirate ace, was on the mound for Powell. Letcher Central collected a single but that was erased by a double play by the Pirate infield. After one inning the score was 1 - 0 in favor of the Pirates.

Both pitchers held the opponents in the second with no runs scoring. Powell would score another run in the third. Morton singled to start the inning and David Hayes singled in the infield to put runners on first and second. Hale moved the runners over with sacrifice bunt. Frank Spencer singled to right field scoring a run but the second runner was cut down at the plate. Johnson allowed a run to Letcher in the bottom of the inning and the Pirates led 2 - 1 after three innings of play. Powell and Letcher failed to score in the fourth.

The Pirates were also held without scoring in the fifth inning. Letcher managed to score a run in the bottom of the inning and the score was 2 - 2 after five innings.

Powell did not score in the sixth and Letcher led off the bottom of the inning with a single.

Johnson was replaced on the mound by freshman pitcher Chance Snowden. After a sacrifice bunt, Snowden got the next two batters to fly out to end the sixth inning with the game still tied.

Powell started the seventh with a single by Pelfrey. Morton put down another sacrifice bunt and reached base on an error by the Letcher pitcher. Powell had runners on first and second with no outs. Hayes hammered the ball to left field and collected a ground rule double as the ball bounced over the fence, Pelfrey scored on the hit. Hale was intentionally walked to load the bases.

Hatmaker hit the ball to third base but the throw home was wide and Morton scored for the Pirates. Powell failed to score any more runs and took a 4 - 2 lead into the bottom of the seventh inning.

Snowden continued to throw strikes and force the Cougar hitters to put the ball in play. The first batter popped out to Hale in center field. Letcher got a hit in the infield on a check swing. Snowden got the cleanup hitter to strikeout for the second out. The final batter hit a line drive to Caleb McCoy in right field to end the game and the Pirates won 4 - 2.

This past Saturday, the Pirates were at Knott Central for a doubleheader. The first game was against Knott Central and the second against Allen Central. Powell quickly dispatched both opponents, The Pirates won easily 13 - 0 in the first game and 11 - 0 in the second game.

Powell's record now stands at 18-4 overall and 3 - 0 in district play. The Pirates were scheduled to face Owsley County on Wednesday. Powell will be at Montgomery County on Friday to play in a Wood Bat Classic, Lincoln County is the opponent. On Saturday, the Pirates will face Montgomery County and Morgan County in the classic.

The Lady Pirates break from a huddle on the mound during last week's game against Jackson City. Though struggling some this season with a young team, the Lady Pirates have enjoyed some successes. They beat Jackson City 7-4 and this past Monday topped Owsley County 14-2 to improve to 2-1 in district play. They will host the Tanner Classic beginning tonight (Thursday) and running through Saturday. Powell will play Lee and Wolfe counties tonight.
